Clever Nippon Woman Writes of Improving Conditions in Japan

Excerpts of a letter sent to Miss Winnie Mulloy of this city from a Japanese friend in Tokyo, is of such unusual interest that the Nugget asked to publish them. The letter by actual measurement is over six feet in length, on thin Japanese paper, beautifully decorated. The English of the educated Japanese woman who writes it, in grammar diction, and idiom is much better then that of the majority of Americans. It follows:

The picture on this paper (letter paper) is that of a shrine dedicated to the grandfather of the present Emperor. He is called Meiji, Emperor, the greatest Emperor that this county has ever had. He did so much to free our people from the narrow old ways. With some American friends. I went there and paid our respects. Every one who comes to this city takes in this shrine.

I am getting to be a regular movie fan, as bad as you are. Go once or twice a week. Saw the "White Sister," the other day, but did not care for it. I like the one that was not a talkie, that I saw several years ago. I did not care much for Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights," but it was greatly advertised and had a long run. In spite of the hard times our eating, drinking and play houses have flourishing business.

SHOW SHOCKS POLICE

"The Greater Marcus" show is here. It is very brilliant and showy but much of it is a low class show. Even our police department was shocked at the lack of clothes and made the girls cover up their navels and extend their panties a little longer. The country which used to be counted among the uncivilized (Japan) is now holding a candle to other countries, by ruling out suggestive things as well as in handling of things over in Manchuria.

This over dumping of cheaply made goods (as the world calls it) will be found to be not so bad when probed to the bottom, but done for spite. If our things can be produced cheaply and well to the satisfaction of the buyers, why so much fuss? People demand too much for labor in other countries and put on high prices when it is not so necessary—so they strike and cause troubles, hard times, whereas if they worked with better spirit, all might run smoothly.

I think our country is the only one that does not show the effect of hard times. Big buildings are going up, while on the other hand small shops are closing down, as they can't compete with department stores. Yet people seem to buy and buy. There is no bread line. Farmers are suffering but the same problem seems to be worse over in your country.

SCHOOLS HARD HIT

Schools are hard hit, as farmers are poor and can't send their children, so fees are cut down, and the teachers are paid less, but the schools are full enough as there are more students than the schools can accommodate and teachers have been taking bribes to let in pupils. Of late there have been great cleaning up in government circles. The Minister of Education was fired as he took bribes from some source and some forty principals of primary schools have been dismissed, as it was learned they had bribed heads to obtain their positions. It is a good thing.

But in America, I understand, school teachers are not being paid, as the city officials pocketed the tax money for their own use— so everywhere it is the poor people that suffer. We have to pay the heavy taxes to keep up all the crooked business —and it is a shame.

A FRIEND IN BRAZIL

I find nowadays the second generation of Japanese children are being sent back to get a Japanese education, so that they can fit into business between the two countries. My friend from Brazil is sending her girl to the school here to get her a Japanese education, but her son is at U. C. Berkeley. The son wants to come here for the summer holidays, but it means quite an expense. She can't, or rather does not care about going back to Brazil, as they are having a revolution there, and she was in a couple of them.

Her daughter was almost killed by a shot that whizzed past her head. When we go to the movies and see the war pictures, she says she can live her revolutionary days again. Her husband won't leave Brazil because he has the biggest Japanese newspaper there and it is hard to sell it at any price now. She has a hard time in getting money to live on, as Brazil will not allow any money to go out of the country, so her hubby has to pay it to some company over there and that connection here pays her.

BUTTER FINGERS

It's a nuisance—but better than to be tied up. Today she lost her maid, as the lady she sent her to was taken ill, and wanted her back. My friend is such a society lady that she just hates to do any housework or anything that soils her hands—so she feels hard hit—and servants are getting to be quite an expensive item, even in this country. Mine is just a kid, and I have to drive her around, but she is good and strong. She is good natured, but lacks brains and has butter fingers—so my dishes suffer. When I am not home—she goes to sleep and takes it easy.

TYPHOON AT HOHKAIDO

Our country certainly gets more than her share of sufferings. Just think of the number of people who died in the typhoon and fire at Ho-

CROWDS AT MAY DAY DANCE HAD ENJOYABLE TIME

The largest crowd to attend a local affair since the New Year's Firemen's ball, was present Wednesday evening for the crowning of the May Queen, program and dance, which lasted until midnight, in Armory hall.

The big hall was packed with an enthusiastic throng who voted to reign beautiful Queen Elsie, regal in her royal robe. Fay and Juanita Williams, both tiny girls, were voted the hit of the evening with their tap dancing. Many of the others received highest of praise and all were given round after round of applause.

The committee is grateful to the many mothers for their hearty cooperation. Among the many others were Mrs. Lester Gregory, for the splendid handling of the tickets, and Carl Tobiassen who brought in a truck load of dog-wood flowers, and greenery, besides an immense lot of wild ferns. These are specially thanked. Praise should go to Mr. and Mrs. Elza Kilroy for decorating the queen's plane with aluminum colored paper.

Mrs. Lyda Talbot deserves special mention in this the best May Day event she has given so far. A goodly sum of money was realized in the sale of the tickets.

FRED CONNER TO BE HOST MONDAY NIGHT

Fred E. Conner, manager of the Nevada County Lumber Company, will be host next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock to contractors and builders of this city and anyone interested in building. He extends a cordial invitation to anyone so interested to be present. The meeting will be held at his office on Boulder street and refreshments will be served.

Mr. Vance, the western representative fo the Reynolds Metal Corporation, will be the speaker of the evening. He will discuss a new and extraordinary type of aluminum insulation for houses, which will cost no more than the ordinary tar paper so much in use. The new insulator is a thin sheet of aluminum and is far more heat and cold resistant than anything for this purpose now in general use. Mr. Vance will give some interesting demonstrations.

LETTERS ATTEST APPRECIATION OF CLUB DELEGATES

The Woman's Civic Club is in receipt of many letters of appreciation, expressing the pleasure of the members of clubs throughout Northern California, who attended the Northern District convention here, in the unique and happy character of the hospitality shown them while in Nevada City.

From Mrs. May G. Rider, who presided at the club women's meetings here comes this expression:

"I do so much want you to know of my very sincere appreciation of the wonderful convention you arranged for us in Nevada City. To me it was perfect from every standpoint. Many women who have been attending conventions for years said it was among the very best they had ever been to. So may I express to you again, and to your committee workers, my heart felt gratitude."

Mrs. F. T. Jones, president of the Tehama County Woman's club, writes:

"I have been following conventions for the past ten years, and I myself had the best time in Nevada City, and I shall long remember my visit to your part of the state. It was my first visit to Nevada City, and it is so beautiful there, and don't wonder now that such fine women come to us from the mountain country. For, how can you help but be broad minded and willing to give, when you live with such a beautiful picture before you all the time.

"Just wanted you to know how one woman feels in regard to the success of the convention, and I know from what the other seven have said, who came from Tehama county, that it was enjoyed by them as well."

Mrs. May F. Herold of the Mt. Pleasant Woman's club, of Lincoln, thus expresses her appreciation:

"The romantic, beloved, pioneer spirit is exemplified most royally in your midst. Please know every one feels a deep gratitude to you all for your wonderfully impartial distribution of entertainment."

From Miss Jennie A. McConnell of Sacramento, came this graceful tribute:

"It is a pleasure to send back this little note, to express how much I enjoyed the Northern District Convention. The atmosphere of the historic old town was so very cordial, and sincere; it was charming. I know full well how hard you worked, and your various committees. Only those who have had similar experiences can fully understand and appreciate."

Mrs. Lois G. Schnabel, president of the Woman's club of Lincoln, writes:

"Your hospitality to us will long remain a memory. It was my first attendance at District Conventions, but I heard on all sides from those who attend conventions frequently that this convention was the "best yet"."

These letters are but typical of the scores received by the Nevada City Civic club, and excerpts from them have been chosen almost at random from a wealth of expressions voicing the same sentiments from the individual viewpoint of the delegates. All members of the Civic club are greatly pleased that their guests and the guests of Nevada City, have gone to their homes with such a splendid memory of their brief stay here.

LAVA CAP STRIKES GOOD ORE VALUES

An important development has been made in the Central mine of the Lava Cap company. Superintendent Otto E. Schiffner reports that on the 1,000 foot level the ledge is in ore that runs as high as $38 per ton ($20.67 value). In places the ledge has increased in breadth to approximately six feet and even there the values average around $20. A drift of over 250 feet along the ledge discloses the same high average values.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tognarelli and daughter, who left Colfax Tuesday morning early, arrived in New York Friday morning, and took a boat at once for Italy.

PYTHIAN SISTERS TO STAGE BABY SHOW ON MAY 23

Babies from Grass Valley, Nevada City, and the surrounding country-side will compete for a series of loving cups, blue ribbon health diplomas, gold seal certificates, and beauty certificates in the Prize Baby Show to be conducted by the Pythian Sisters of Grass Valley, Olympic Temple No. 10, during the coming month. All babies under the age of five years are eligible for registration, and no entry fee will be charged.

Each baby entered will receive a thorough physical examination, and the score cards which will be filled in by a staff of local physicians, will be returned to the parents afterwards for their information as to the exact condition of the baby at the time of the examination. Silver loving cups, blue ribbon health diplomas, and health certificates will be awarded the high-scoring babies in this division of the Baby Show.

A Baby Beauty Show will be staged at the Legion Memorial building, Grass Valley, on May 23, at which the most beautiful girl babies and the most handsome and manly of the boy babies in the various age classes will be selected. Each of these babies will receive loving cups or beauty medal certificates.

A King and Queen selected from three age divisions will be chosen from the high-scoring babies in the health, beauty and popularity divisions of the baby show. Each little King and Queen will receive a silver loving cup and gold seal certificate at the coronation ceremonies to be held at the Legion Memorial building on May 29.

Each baby entered, will be photographed at the Maurice Studios, 107 Mill Street, Grass Valley; these pictures to be placed on exhibition at the baby show headquarters. No charge will be made to the parents. Registration offices will be open at the Grass Valley Flower Shop, 123 Mill Street, Grass Valley, on Friday morning, May 4. Special gifts will be given to the first fifty babies registered on Friday morning.

MAY DAY YIELDS ANGLERS SPORT

The trout had a bad day last Tuesday. Trusting in the rainy weather to protect them from snares of old Isaac's ardent disciples, they gobbled worms, salmon eggs, occasionally snapped up a fly and viciously attacked spinners. The casualties among the finny ones were surprisingly heavy.

Sportsmen roared up from Sacramento Monday to be out on the streams by sun-up (?) Tuesday. Among others, was Mel Newfield, well known insurance man, C. J. Lilly, editor and manager of the Sacramento Union, and William H. Dodge, owner of that newspaper, up from Los Angeles on a holiday.

Attorney Francis Finnegan, of the legal firm of Jones & Finnegan, rose bright and early Tuesday morning and gave the irrigation ditches a fine whipping, bringing home a dozen nice fish by the time business opened.

Delbert Schiffner, came up from Sacramento Junior College and accompanied by his brother Bob, and a college pal, visited a chosen bit of stream remembered from high school days. All three brought home the limit.

Scoutmaster Edd Addington, accompanied by Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Albert Pratti, made a quick trip to Greenhorn and, fishing in a snow storm with worms, introduced two nice catches from the bottom of the creek into their fish baskets.

Frank Chidotti invaded the high altitude of Lake Lindsey and brought home a four-pound eastern brook trout. Bowman's and Bear Valley were visited by other anglers, many of whom fished enthusiastically while their feet were in the snow.

Over in Grass Valley, Ralph Caselli, of Hills Flat, went fishing without a license or official button. He came back from Wolf Creek under arrest by Game Warden Ray O'Connor and was fined $20 in Justice of the Peace Winburn's court.

GOLD YEAR FILM TO SHOW NEVADA CITY AND MINES

Views of Nevada City were made by motion picture cameraman Eric Mayell Wednesday morning for "California's Modern Mining Industry," being produced by Western Mining News as part of the national publicity campaign for next year's celebration. After completing the scenes in the streets of the city, the camera was taken to the Hussey mine for filming of operations on the property. Other properties were visited subsequently so that representative operations in mining and gold recovery could be secured.

Endorsement of the Gold Year Celebration in 1935 was given by members of the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce through Mr. F. F. Cassidy, president of the civic organization. The Celebration already has active sponsorship of the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce and the California State body. These organizations will prepare nationwide publicity for the event in conjunction with steamship, railroad and bus companies. A week of events will be held in San Francisco as a starting point for trips throughout the various mining centers of the state. It is anticipated by the sponsors that thousands of travelers will be brought to the mines by this celebration from all over the country.

Speaking of the purposes of the Gold Year Celebration, Mr. Knorp, editor of Western Mining News, said: "Through the channels which are open to the organizations backing this project the prosperous class of visitors will actually come to the gold districts. In these districts there are many opportunities awaiting only adequate financing before they are brought into profitable production. This financial backing can be secured best by showing prospective investors that a sound profitable opportunity exists in which the hazards are today actually less than in the ordinary fields of industry and commerce—and the profits are considerably higher."

When the silent pictures are completed, a sound truck will be brought in to make additional pictures. Airplane views will be taken likewise as best suited to portray the proximity of ideal mountain vacation spots to the Nevada City mines.

Local interests are taking steps to insure that Nevada City will derive its full share of the state wide movement for national publicity which will continue from the present ttime until the actual celebration takes place next spring and summer.

STUDENTS HEAR LECTURE ON NARCOTIC EVILS

Mr. Earl Albert Rowell, author and investigator of narcotic problems and evils, gave a forty minute talk at the Nevada City high school Wednesday just after the noon hour.

He warned his listeners of dope peddlers and their practices. He told of the horrors which addicts suffer, of their filthy dens, and of the methods under which narcotics are smuggled into the country. His lecture keenly interested the high school students and members of the faculty.

ALLEGED BULL SHOOTER GETS CHANGE OF VENUE

Appearing before Judge Walter Mobley, of Nevada City, on a charge of maliciously shooting and injuring a bull belonging to Mrs. J. S. Bradbury, of North San Juan, the defendant asked that the case be heard before Judge Frank Reader, of the San Juan justice court. The request was granted, the date of the trial to be set later.

Dick Lane of the Plaza Garage, brought the limit of fine trout into Nevada City yesterday morning, from a nearby stream. They are beauties and he is being congratulated on his success as he is one of the first with limits since the season opened.

Justice William H. Waste, John W. Shenk, John W. Preston, Emmet Seawell, Jesse W. Curtis and W. H. Landon, of the California Supreme Court Wednesday evening were the guests of the Nevada County Bar Association at a banquet in the Brete Harte Inn, attended by members of the local bar association, the Sacramento County Bar Association and their wives.

District Attorney W. E. Wright, president of the Nevada County Bar Association, acted as toastmaster, with E. H. Armstrong, of Grass Valley as program chairman.

Speakers durnig the evening other than the justices included Superior Judge Raglan Tuttle, of Nevada City and Attorney Armstrong.

Guests from the Sacramento Bar Association were: Superior Judge Malcolm C. Glenn, James Gaffney, Herberrt E. White, Evan Hughes, Judge B. C. Gaddis, Gil Rowland, C. H. Dunn and James M. Meredith, the president of the Sacramento association.

"SAM" CLARK IS ASKING VOTERS TO REELECT HIM

SAMUEL J. CLARK, known to his friends all over the county, as "Sam" will enter the August primaries as a candidate for re-election to the office of County Recorder, a position which he has filled with efficiency for many years.

Painstaking and accurate in all that he does, Mr. Clark is an ideal recorder. For it is upon this painstaking accuracy in placing instruments on record depends the title to real estate. Every document affecting real estate should be placed on record in the recorder's office. It is a proof of ownership that establishes the owner's right to property.

Although the work of the Recorder's office has in the years that Mr. Clark has been in the office, increased more than 30 per cent every document except very lengthy ones are copied into the records before the end of the following business day, most of them on the day they are received.

This has made it possible to abolish the "blotter" system of entering recorded instruments, in vogue for many years. Under this system documents were listed alphabetically in a temporary book and recorded in this turn. Now documents are placed on record immediately after their receipt and returned to the party filing them.

Mr. Clark in his office work has established a record which he believes entitles him to re-election.

MINER OBJECTS TO HIGH COSTS IN N. Y., ARRESTED

Leo Dages, miner of Nevada City, who is in New York on his way to visit his parents in Germany, was taken before the police there on alleged peace disturbance charge, being accused of carrying a weapon without a permit.

He was indignant over being charged $12 for a drink and $1 to check his hat in a Broadway night club. Two detectives, who followed him, heard him, it is alleged, remark that he would return and "shoot up the place." On a steamshp pier just before Dages was to embark, detectives found a loaded automatic pistol in his luggage.

F. A. BROUN TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER MAY 10

The trial of F. A. Broun, charged with the murder of James Perry in the Grass Valley jungles, March 10, will commence in the superior court on Thursday, May 10.

VOTERS ASKED TO REELECT FRANK STEEL TO OFFICE

Frank Steel, County Treasurer, who has been twice elected to that office without opposition, is again a candidate for re-election, announcing his entry in this issue of the Nevada City Nugget.

Mr. Steel served as deputy under William T. Garland, County Treasurer, until the latter resigned from the office to enter the banking business. The Board of Supervisors then appointed his efficient deputy to the office, and in 1926 and in 1930 Mr. Steel was re-elected.

Born in Grass Valley and a graduate of the Grass Valley high school, Mr. Steel entered business early in life and for some time after graduation was on the staff of the Grass Valley Tidings. Later he won a place as deputy under George Coughlan, County Clerk, and from that office became deputy to Mr. Garland in the Treasurer's office.

The fiduciary position which Mr. Steel has so ably filled for the past nine years, is one of grave responsibility, and the tax payers of the county will be glad to learn that Mr. Steel is again a candidate to succeed himself.

Approximately a half million dollars passes through the hands of the county treasurer every year. By twice returning Frank Steel to office, business men and tax payers of the county have shown their desire to return a sound business man, an efficient executive and a man of high personal integrity, in charge of the county's funds and financial tranactions.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

Spring Fever

Say "spring fever" to most adults and they think of sulphur and molasses. Although such so called tonics and blood purifiers are gradually, and deservedly, passing out of general use, the fact remains there is a condition which we come to know as "spring fever."

In reality, spring has nothing to do with it. Winter is the season at fault. We are shut in more and subjected to colds, sore throats, and the like during the winter. We take less exercise and receive less sunshine. We lack quantities of green vegetables and fruits in our diets. By the time spring rolls around, the reserves of strength and energy are approaching low tide.

We speak of being "run-down" or "tired-out." And that is what it is—a mental and physical "let down," for children as well as adults. But the answer is not medicine. Send the child out of doors; let him get sunshine; bring on the fresh vegetables and fruits. If there isn't a pick-up, by all means consult your physician, for the "let down" may have brought on something more serious.

"Desserts," an important matter where children are concerned, will be discussed by Dr. Ireland next week.

NEW RULES FOR HUNTERS IN U. S. FOREST AREAS

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, announced two new regulations today for the control of hunting and fishing in the national forests. Under these regulations it will be possible to extend or to shorten hunting and fishing seasons in the national forests with a view to managing the wild life resources of these Federal properties to conserve both the timber and soils of the forests and the animals, birds and fish. The Forest Service plans to apply these new fish and game regulations only where present cooperative arrangements for managing the wild life within national forests have proved inadequate.

"Regulation G-20 A is designed solely to provide such wild life management on national forest areas or streams as will secure adequate protection, development, and utilization of all resources. It is hoped it will promote closer cooperation and aid in the application of practical plans which have been developed by the Forest Service and cooperating agencies. It will be applied only where cooperative efforts have proved inadequate," said F. A. Silcox, chief forester.

HEAVY BAGS SOME YEARS

In announcing the regulations, Secretary Wallace pointed out that in some instances they may lead to long seasons and heavy bag limits for hunters of certain animals in areas where natural multiplication has led to overstocking of the forest resources. In some areas deer have multiplied beyond the capacity of the range to such an extent that they not only are injuring young trees and soil, because of overgrazing, but many deer have actually died of starvation. In such instances seasons and bag limits may be increased until the number of deer is reduced to the stable carrying capacity of the forest.

In other areas, he said, the lands in Government ownership are not now producing as much wild life as would be possible under wise management, and the new regulations will enable the secretary—acting after investigation by the Forest Service—to restrict hunting and fishing until game or fish have multiplied to a degree where they are making effective use of the area. The new regulations look toward the management of the wild life crop on a sustained production basis, coordinated with other essential uses of the forest areas.

PRODUCTIVE USE

The National Forests, with 162,009,145 acres of Federal land, are the principal ranges for the big game animals of the West, especially during the summer period. The enlarged program for the purchase of forest and mountainous lands for National Forest purposes east of the Great Plains, will make these properties also important aids in wild life development and management. That all land should be devoted to its most productive use is a principle that has guided Forest Service policy for 29 years. This principle has been applied to range primarily adapted to wild life, and land use plans have been developed accordinkly. Although its application has resulted in a great increase in big game animals on the National Forests in the past 10 years, the Forest Service realizes there is need for more intensive game management. This is indicated by the fact that many areas still support only a relatively small fraction of the wild life they might support, and on other large areas there is more wild life than the land can carry.

NEVADA COUNTY HAS 24 ONE TEACHER SCHOOLS

LOS ANGELES, May 3.—Twenty-four, or 82.8 per cent of the elementary school district in Nevada county employed only one teacher for the school year 1932-33, according to a study of elementary school districts in California recently made by California Taxpayers' Association from figures prepared by the California State Department of Education.

In 36 of the 58 counties of California, more than half the elementary school districts employed only one teacher. In Alpine county, the smallest in the state in point of population, each of the three elementary school districts employed only one teacher. In Shasta county 79 districts, or 90.8 per cent of the elementary school districts, employed only one teacher. In El Dorado county 38, or 90.6 per cent of all the elementary school districts, employed only one teacher.

On the other extreme, San Francisco county had only one school district, Orange county had only 5 school districts employing but one teacher, or 7 per cent of the elementary school districts of the county. In Imperial county, only 6, or 14.6 per cent of the elementary school districts, employed only one teacher.

J. F. O'CONNOR OUT FOR RETURN TO SURVEY POST

Completing his fourth consecutive term as County.... Surveyor with a record of capable and efficient handling of the county's engineer problems and uncontested in the four previous elections, J. F. O'Connor, native of the Relief Hill section and county resident throughout his life, has placed his name for election to the office of County Surveyor, at the primary election, August 28th.

Joe O'Connor as he is familiarly known throughout the county, holds the unique position of being a non-salaried county officer, the statute making no provision for annual salary and remuneration being paid only on the per diem basis as he works on some county project.

Within the last four years, the county surveyor has been in direct touch with the public works of the county administration, serving as the engineer and surveyor of the now complete and highly utilized Colfax highway as well as making the surveys and superintending the laying of county bridges at Boca, Washington, Foote's Crossing as well as giving attention to other county construction matters.

The record of the county officer during the past four administrations is the keystone on which he bases his nomination for return to office.

BILLION DOLLARS—MILLION JOBS

It is estimated that there is in this country $1,000,000,000 of idle capital which would normally be used in the mortgage market for residential building.

If, as is hoped, present efforts loosen these funds and bring building back near normal, close to a million men will find good jobs. They will have regular incomes, after years in which most of them have been finding the going extremely hard. They will have money to spend for necessities and luxuries—and that money will go through a thousand and one industries, buying materials and supplies and services, paying taxes and interest, creating more jobs and building up payrolls for all types of workers.

That is what construction revival will do for the country generally. In its individual application, so far as the property-owner is concerned, it will likewise do this: Boom building costs. They have been rising slowly, but steadily, since the low reached last summer. They are still far below normal—as a matter of fact, costs of most materials used in building have lagged behind the general commodity price advance. That means that the millions of citizens who have money with which to build and repair now—before this belated boom starts—can still get a whole lot more than a dollar's worth for every dollar spent. And that condition isn't going to last much longer, unless all present signs point the wrong way.

Build now, repair now, renovate now. That motto will aid you in doing your bit toward achieving recovery—and will figuratively put money in your pocket.

PLANS FOR FOURTH TO BE DISCUSSED TUESDAY

No action was taken at the special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce called Wednesday night for making preliminary plans for the celebration of the Fourth in Nevada City. There was not a quorum present and the meeting was adjourned until next Tuesday evening, the chamber's regular meeting date, at which time it is urged that there be a large attendance of members and citizens to arrange for this big biennial event. The day is celebrated in alternate years by Grass Valley and Nevada City.

Horace B. Dow returned from Los Angeles Wednesday evening. He went down to return with his mother, Mrs. M. Ivan Dow, but she has been quite ill and was not able to return home at this time. She will remain for a longer visit with her daughter.

MINING ACTIVITY IN WASHINGTON

Roy Walsh, mining man, came down from Washington yesterday on business and from him it was learned that the old town of Washington is taking on new life.

Mining is on the up and up, with several mines in operation and a number of others to open and reopen.

Plans are going forward to open a new grocery store and other business houses in the next few weeks.

The Lucky Boy mine, above Washington, worked by Roy Walsh and partner, is doing well.

The men have built a blacksmith shop, gotten out timbers, and are now 40 feet along in the New tunnel. They expect to drive another 100 feet before striking the channel. It is proven virgin ground and Mr. Walsh is positive it won't be long until they begin taking out rich returns.

TEN MEN AT HUGHES MINE

The Hughes mine near Downieville, is getting ready for a big summer's work. Ten men are employed at present in getting the property in shape for active operations. Plans are to install a mill to handle the ore.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Skeahan, newly weds, are comfortably located in the old Christiansen home on Spring street, formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Tognarelli. Mr. Skeahan is one of Nevada City's young business men. The young couple have the best wishes of the entire district for happiness and success.

Plaza Grocery have this week put in some more new counters which add greatly to the convenience in displaying their merchandise.

Carpenters are busy renewing the porch around the Plaza Grocery store.

Will Sharp, mine promoter and former resident, came over from near Camino Wednesday and was greeting friends.

CLEVER NIPPON WOMAN

hkaido. Tonight's paper says: total dead to date, is 1,552. More and more are added. This awful typhoon passed our city. It was on March 21st. It blew a gale—and rained in every direction. My flower pots blew off of the clothes drying place on the roof and broke some of the tiles and the roof leaked, a little damage to the back fence, but otherwise, I got off quite easy. Those poor creatures in Northern Japan had snow on the ground and the snow blew in circles and took the people off their feet— then to make matters worse, fire cleaned up everything. The pictures we see of the wreck look just like the pictures of this city after the quake of 1933. Tokyo, as it took place in the summer, so that people could take shelter anywhere—but those poor people were like drowned rats—the fire, then out into the cold blizzard, snow and rain, unable to save anything.

GLAD OF NO SONS

I am so sick and tired of war talk. I should think when people see these awful war pictures, they would hate to think even of war—but as Bernard Shaw says: there are only about ten men in the whole world who urge war for their own profit. He also says that in the next war—all the old fellows who talk of war should go first, then there would be no war, as they won't go. What do mothers of America think about war? To bring their sons into this world—rear them, educate them, just to live like pigs in the trenches to be made a target of. Oh, I am so thankful I have no sons to send to war to be killed, but that does not mean that I am not patriotic enough to help my country in case of trouble. If worst comes to worst, I would be willing to do my share, but women must work harder to bring about peace, don't you think so?

Men are such fools. You don't hear those who have been at the front talk about wanting to go again, as the romance has worn off and it was not as they had expected. It would wipe out a country in a few days, with the bombs from the air and the poison gas. Last summer's war practice was enough for me. We had to live in the dark and be covered with smoke veils, and machine guns going day and night.

ERROL MACBOYLE TO FLY IN 6 PASSENGER PLANE

Errol MacBoyle, manager of the Idaho-Maryland mine and Doctor C. P. Jones, of Grass Valley, have chartered a new six-passenger Bellanaca monoplane which was set down on Gilmore flying field Wednesday noon. This plane is of the type and power that Chamberlain used in his flight to Berlin.

L. A. Perett, who owns the plane, flew from Cleveland, Ohio, to Los Angeles and came from southern California last Wednesday.

It has a 330 horsepower Wright whirlwind motor, capable of making a high rate of speed, and has a climbing capacity of 29,000 feet. A hangar is to be built at the Gilmore field soon, where the plane is to be based.

Masonic Home Announces Month of May Campaign To Endow Relief Homes

MASONS HOME FOR CHILDREN AT COVINA, LOS ANGELES COUNTY (Top) one of eighty-four girls attending Covina public schools, domiciled under the care of Masons of California; other scenes taken from the orchard and farm, a part of the home program.

Believing that members of Masonic lodges of California, and members affiliated from other states, are unwilling that Masonic homes for children and for the aged be jeopardized because of economic conditions, the Grand Lodge of California is announcing that May is to be Masonic Homes Endowment month.

While Chairman W. P. Jeffries of the Masonic Homes Endowment board declares that the committee is not "viewing with alarm," or placing unnecessary emphasis on the financial situation, he nevertheless said this week that a determined effort worthy of the organization must be made in order to prevent further undesirable curtailment in the operating of these Masonic relief agencies.

In common with most activities, the expenses at the home for the aged at Decoto and the home for children at Covina, have been trimmed to the minimum, he said, both in salaries and general operating costs. It becomes necessary to arouse the consciousness of every member to the need for adequate support during this May drive, and the first appeal is directed toward voluntary contribution of a minimum of two dollars per member. It is hoped and expected that every Mason will make a personal contribution $2.00, $10.00, $50.00, or $100, whatever it may be, the committee said.

The endowment board has launched this campaign through contact with every lodge in the state, and is also carrying on a widespread effort to increase bequests, in order that the institutions may eventually be sustained through income from endowments, as has already been accomplished in Pennsylvania and elsewhere. Many men and women with no Masonic affiliations, as well as members, willed amounts for these purposes, so that, in Pennsylvania today there is a fund of sixteen million dollars, upon which the grand lodge maintains its beneficent activities.

FROM OTHER STATES

"Realizing that there are thousands of Masons belonging to the several chapters, councils, commanderies and Scottish Rites bodies within the borders of California whose Masonic memberships are held in other states, we are offering to them an opportunity to share in the accomplishments of Masonry in their adopted state. These are urged to get in touch with the organization nearest them, and to aid in correcting a condition that is urgent," the chairman said.

The two homes maintained by California Masons are (for the aged) at Decoto, Alameda county, and (for children) at Covina, in eastern Los Angeles county. The first resident of the Decoto home was James J. Sanderson, Pacific Lodge 136, admitted March 13th, 1899. Since that time there have been 1206 men to take advantage of this home and pass their declining years in comfort and security.

At Covina there are 94 boys and 82 girls, as of April of this year, with ages ranging from five to eighteen. Since its inception in 1915, the home has housed, educated and given life-training to 785 children of Masons. Deprived of one or both of their parents, these children have been given moral and medical care, physical culture, knowledge of farming and handicraft, and have been passed through the public schools of the area, graduating from the Covina high school. The guidance and interest of the Masonic fraternity continues to extend indefinitely after the children have been sent out into the world.

INTEREST CONTINUED

"No child leaves this home until we have made provisions for a livelihood or the pupil has made that provision for himself or herself," said Superintendent John M. Downen of the Covina institute. "We know where they all are, what they are doing, and how they are getting along."

"The Grand Lodge is not launching a 'drive' for funds," Chairman Jeffries pointed out. "But we are asking that every member face this urgency as an individual problem, and during the month of May make possible the establishment of a permanent endowment fund."

Serving on the endowment board with Chairman Jeffries of Los Angeles are: Robert B. Gaylord, vice-chairman, Oakland; William Rhodes Hervey, vice-chairman, Los Angeles; William P. Filmer, treasurer, San Francisco; Judge Frank M. Smith, secretary, Los Angeles; directors, Reynolds E. Blight, Los Angeles; Arthur S. Crites, Bakersfield; Louis C. Drapeau, Ventura; Eugene Elkus, San Francisco; Thomas Flint, Hollister; James T. Fraser, Eureka; Edmund A. Lockett, Pasadena; Judge John F. Pullen, Sacramento; David W. Schick, San Diego; Harry F. White, Fresno; Leon O. Whitsell, San Francisco.

SAN JUAN SHAFT IS DOWN 290 FT.

Sinking and drifting continues at the San Juan mine north of Nevada City. The shaft is now down 290 feet in excellent ore. The company is shipping ore each month to the A. S. & R., copper smelter at Tacoma, Washington, another shipment having just been made from the local depot of the Nevada County Narrow Gauge Railroad. Fifteen men are employed.

Phil and Worthen Bradley, brothers, came up from the bay region and inspected the mine Tuesday, and continued on to the Spanish mine the same afternoon.

STARR AND PLATE TO SAMPLE MOUNTAIN MINE

George W. Starr and H. R. Plate, the latter of the Spring Hill mine, and a San Francisco man, are opening up the Mountain mine in the Washington district, east of Nevada City.

Men are at work doing preliminary work, getting the property in shape for sampling. This work will take between three and four months as the shaft has to be cleaned out and unwatered before sampling can be done.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart

Washington.—The senate has started another investigation. It has determined to go on a fishing expedition into the several industries that manufacture things that are used in making war. There will be a long-drawn-out inquiry; there will be seizure of papers and there will be smearing, some justified and some unjustified, of leaders in the shipbuilding, munitions and aircraft industries. It is liable to be a nasty thing before it is concluded and a report made to the senate.

Inquiry May Shock

There was no noise about passage of the resolution which was proposed by Senators Nye of North Dakota and Vandenberg of Michigan. The resolution creates a special committee which already has begun work. Its passage actually was noted in the newspapers that I saw with no more display than a couple of paragraphs. But the proposition ought to be among those to which attention is closely directed. Unless the bulk of the observers is wrong, the investigation that the Nye-Vandenberg resolution started is going to have a far-reaching effect both in domestic affairs of the United States and in the international field.

One of the reasons why it is so important to give thought to the investigation is the particular time at which it arrives among the window displays of government activities. It hardly need be stated here that international relations are strained in many parts of the world. There is nothing on the horizon to indicate that they will improve. Strained relations, if they continue, lead inevitably to war, and I reported to you several months ago that some nations are headed in that direction if the information our government has is correct. It is naturally to be expected then that overt acts on the part of some of the disturbed powers are going to follow, and the disclosures which the Nye-Vandenberg committee are prepared to make will help the international situation not one bit. Indeed, there is no reason to believe otherwise than that the impending disclosures will complicate the situation and create more hatred and suspicion. In other words, as I see it, the disclosures are more than likely to hasten that which seems inevitable, namely, war in several parts of the world.

Senator Pope of Idaho, temporary chairman of the committee, told me that the country is likely to be shocked "when it learns the ramifications of the situation," referring to the operations of the shipbuilding, aircraft and munitions companies. While he did not say so, I drew the inference from his remarks that he believes there has been collusion of some kind or other among some of those industrial leaders in order to engender ill will among nations already suspicious of each other.

"We are going to find out how many American shells are going to be used to kill American soldiers later," said Senator Pope.

And so we are off on another crashing, smashing, bull-in-the-china closet type of inquiry. All of us remember the famous investigation of shipbuilding activities at the Geneva armament conference. The committee smeared one William Shearer when Shearer was serving as agent for several of the shipbuilding concerns. None was sure when that investigation started where it would lead. The same can be said of the current inquiry.

Bad Time for Fishing

To my way of thinking, however, the inquiry is much more important in the effect it will have upon international relations than in the smearing of men and corporations. Frankly, the opinion I have formed after many conversations with men and women of sound judgment is that this is an exceedingly bad time for such a fishing expedition. Any disclosure of relations between a munitions company and a foreign nation are going to be seized upon by that nation's neighbors as evidence and there will be blood in the eye in a hurry.

I hope my observations and conclusions will not be taken as condoning any crookedness. My point is that business relations between a private corporation and its customer should be allowed some degree of secrecy so long as they are not contrary to public good. Governments are going to buy munitions; they are going to buy aircraft, and they are going to have ships built. The question naturally follows, then, whether it is proper or improper for an American plant to sell something it makes to a foreign nation even if it knows they are to be used in fighting. I can see where those commodities ought not to be sold for use against America, but our government buys such supplies constantly and buys them from American makers. If other governments can buy them here, I fail to see why they should not be allowed to do so unless such sales have the aftermath of dragging the United States into war.

These Japanese assertions, or inferences, that "white hands" must stay out of China are not reassuring. The inability of the Europeans to get together in a solution of their own problems is also disconcerting. It cannot be doubted that some of the foreign nations are sitting atop of a powder keg. It is just possible that the Nye-Vandenberg resolution may strike a match above the powder, as well as serving to embarrass and delay efforts of the various industries to get production expanded that more employment will result.

General Johnson and his NRA has come into more trouble. The National Recovery Board of Review, a detached group responsible only to the President, has written a report of findings in several cases where small plants have complained about the effect of the codes. And the report of the board, headed by Clarence Darrow of Chicago, the famed attorney, is a scathing denunciation of some of the code provisions. In fact, some members of the review board take the position that the codes have permitted the great industries to grind the smaller ones, the little fellows, to a commercial death.

More Trouble for NRA

The President's views of the report are not known at this time, but it has leaked out that Mr. Roosevelt is willing to have the review board call a spade a spade. Knowledge of his attitude came through devious channels. There was rumor around Washington that the President was going to try to kill off the board by withholding funds from it. The board was the idea of some of the senators, anyway, and it was believed the President felt none too warmly toward it. Yet it has now been established that the President is going to uphold the hand of the board, notwithstanding extreme pressure that is coming from NRA quarters to get rid of it.

In some Washington offices there is a very definite belief that Mr. Roosevelt is entirely willing to let General Johnson retire. General Johnson's bombastic style of speech and his "crack-down" threats have not been so well received in many places and there is opinion available that the general ought to fade out of the NRA. Mr. Roosevelt can't fire him. That would be a dangerous thing to do from a political standpoint. It does seem, however, that a change is coming.

Business leaders have begun to preach more strongly against the codes and they are getting more and more adherents. Some economists who were thoroughly "sold" on the codes have begun to doubt that the types of regulations adopted are all that they have been advertised. As the things are put in practice, their weaknesses develop. Whether they can be corrected for practicable application remains to be seen.

With all of this war talk hither and yon, I inquired from the War department and found that roughly one-third of our army forces are garrisoned outside of the United States. The latest official tabulation shows the army as having 12,156 officers, 885 warrant officers, and 123,459 enlisted men, including around 11,000 Philippine Scouts. Of these, 2,200 officers, 140 warrant officers and 35,036 enlisted men are on posts outside of continental United States.

Army Distribution

The matter of the location of our army personnel is pertinent at this time, too, because of the possibility that the United States government sooner or later will grant independence to the Filippinos. I hope it is later, rather than sooner, for I hear so much discussion of dangers that appear certain to develop if the Filippinos become a nation unto themselves. The consensus seems to be that the natives will be able to govern themselves, but whether they can protect themselves is another matter.

The United States has an army strength of 553 officers, 51 warrant officers and 4,064 enlisted men in the Philippines, in addition to the Philippine Scouts who number 62 officers and 6,398 enlisted men. That is quite a force and an influence against any ideas that foreign powers must overcome before they seize the Philippines. It should be mentioned that the force and influence existent there also includes some rather important American gunboats and a naval base, Pearl Harbor, which undoubtedly is the defense key. So no bloodthirsty foreign statesmen are going after the little islands as long as our forces are there.

There is an international phase to be considered at this time, one that is not as apparent as it is real. I refer to the tangled skein of circumstances resulting from Japanese declarations of a right to influence Chinese affairs and to use force if necessary. That threat—and it cannot be called by any other name—is notice to Russia and to all of the Western powers, the United States included, that the Japanese program of territorial expansion is going forward. It may be that many powers will be involved before Japanese statesmen are made to understand, but certainly it is not a time in which to consider withdrawal from that important position that our nation has in the Philippines.

Much Admired Windswept Prints

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT'S smart to be windswept. Hither and thither the winds of fashion do blow until most everything in the spring and summer mode is being made to express a very poetry of motion.

The amusing part about the breezes which waft through fashionland is that they are so well trained, blowing ever forward during the daytime hours while at night they completely reverse the order of things. Of course, it is all due to the artful manipulation of pleats and flares and various other devices which designers position at the front of the coat or dress or hat to be worn during the day until you look as if the wind were carrying you forward, while smartest evening fashions take on airplane draperies at the back or fan-spreading trains or similar details which make it seem as if milady were winging her way in the very face of the winds.

Even fabrics themselves are yielding to the touch of fashion's elusive breezes. There are the new "windswept prints" for instance, which are certainly a step forward in this current vogue. These perfectly fascinating prints are developed in flower patternings, but with a distinct difference between the new florals and those of previous seasons. In the modern "windswept" versions flowers are shown bending over on slender stalks as if swayed by gentle breezes.

You'll love these swagger windswept prints. In the new chulla construction they are as practical as they are good-looking. And do they wear well! There's scarcely any "wear out" to them. Neither will the delicate color fade or run in washing and they iron smooth and perfect just like magic. Another grand thing about crepes of this type is that they are such a joy to work with. The texture is so firm and dependable—never pulls out at the seams and stays "put," which makes it easy for the home-sewing woman to handle.

The three adorable dresses pictured are made of the new windswept prints. Those dainty white accents at neckline and sleeves—well now, we ask you, aren't the frothy, filmy neckwear fashions simply thrilling this season? The print to the right is that gloriously colorful a mere word picture cannot do it justice, and when one stops to think that this print will wash like new, what more is there to be desired in the way of a perfect print? The filmy white organdie roll-edged petal collar and cuffs add the climaxing touch. The self-fabric stitched belt drawn through a gay colored ring is worth noting.

There is a modest beauty about the spring posies with their delicate tendrils so gracefully windswept in the print to the left which will carry especial appeal to the woman of discriminating taste. In any of its color combinations this print is charming, but in navy with a strain of lighter blue running throughout, together with fluttery white spring posies splotched with fresh light green, it is irresistible.

The ankle-length frock with contrasting fitted jacket admirably solves the problem of what to wear for semi-formal occasions. Worn with its jacket of solid color you have the feeling of being correctly attired most any hour of the day. Remove the jacket and the dress goes just formal enough to tune in to most any afternoon occasion. It has quaint drop shoulders and cunning wee puff sleeves. The piquant little velvet tie about the throat is reminiscent of the "gay nineties." The windswept print which fashions it carries a very animated patterning.

DAYTIME EFFECTS ON EVENING DRESS

A new evening frock which Augustabernard makes of her blackish green crepe marocain has a daytime neck line and short sleeves that are gathered into the shoulder seam at the edges. The front of the bodice is draped into a full-length panel, caught under a rhinestone buckle at the right side front of the waistline.

Lelong fashions the skirt and jacket of this, an evening suit, of black wool, and the latter has revers of sable and sleeves that are unusually wide between the deep-fitted cuffs and the elbows. The skirt is a simple ankle-length mermaid skirt. The blouse of this suit is made of flowered satin, pinks and greens on a black background.

Grand New Nighties of Satin in Floral Prints

A visit to the shops will disclose lots of new ideas. A few minutes in one shop showed grand new nighties of heavy satin in floral prints, so well done that the result looks like panties.

Then there are tailored pajamas of heavy crepe de chine with three-quarter length coats of similar fabric. These are done in white or pastel shades and are piped in a contrasting color.

Modern Jewelry Adds to Attractiveness of Costume

A leading sportswear shop shows costume bracelet and belt sets tricky enough to renew any costume. These come in narrow and spacious widths, one set in coral, natural color, others in either silver or gold mesh.

The silver combination is accented with white metal trim. Another clever ornament here is a dog's head clip—to be attached to one's hat, neckline or waist.

EXQUISITE LACE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The summer program heralds a widespread vogue for lace, with special emphasis placed on the gown which is fashioned of the finer sort of lace of delicate cobweb mesh. Molyneux creates this lovely dinner gown of black lace, with its subtle tracery of flowers and leaves on an enchantingly sheer background. The gown gives delightful expression to the new silhouette which calls for crispness and animated lines (the lace is stiffened with horsehair), knee-length tunic, and fullness which interprets a fan-spreading movement, just now so much admired, toward the back.

Bit of Old Japan Transplanted to Western Shores

A STRANGE, self-supporting community thrives on the outskirts of Terminal island at busy, modern Los Angeles harbor. Though the huge harbor is cosmopolitan in atmosphere, the most striking feature of the center of shipping industry is Fish Harbor village—a bit of old Tokyo transplanted to western shores. The little community, numbering between 3,000 and 4,000 inhabitants, has flourished for from 20 to 25 years, and has had its own public school since 1917. Four hundred and sixty little Nipponese youngsters attend the school and five Russian children—the only pupils of the white race. The teachers are all Americans, but speak accurate Japanese, while the children attend Japanese classes after school and on Saturdays, where they learn the customs and language of their native land. Most of the inhabitants of the village are hardy tuna fishermen and a few storekeepers who cater to the wants of the seafaring Orientals. Each neat little home has its own beautiful garden, as in Japan, where practically all of the food is raised. The families all speak Japanese when they are together, restricting their school-acquired English to conversations with the rare American visitor, for Americans are not welcomed at Fish Harbor. The children are shy and their parents surly to the casual visitor, who is refused service in the stores and discouraged from returning. Patriotism of the school children is restricted to their annual Doll festival, when they dress up in their best clothing and vigorously wave American flags. The other 364 days of the year they are Japanese, though half of them are American-born. Fish Harbor village needs no police station, as the law-abiding, orderly citizens take their minor troubles to an elder whose word is law and who settles all minor disputes. There are no courts, no fights—nothing that would require a police force in the segregated community. In the hundreds of little homes Japanese customs prevail, with diet consisting almost exclusively of fish and rice raised in their own gardens. Shoes are removed when one enters the houses, and ancient symbols decorate the walls. Marriages are performed by Buddhist and Shinto priests and heralded with days of feasting and merrymaking, while the ancient custom of respect for elders pertains. As the village is almost completely free from outside influence, nothing but the Americanized clothing of the people differentiates it from Japan. The big event of the year is the annual visit of the Japanese warships, when about 20,000 Japanese from neighboring communities turn out to welcome the sailors from across the sea with feasting and festivals. About 17 different nationalities are represented at the harbor, but of all these, Fish Harbor village is the most self-contained and picturesque. The photograph shows some of the Japanese tuna fishermen mending their nets, which are spread out upon the streets of Fish Harbor village at Terminal island.

PATTY AND THE BEE

By ANNE CAMPBELL

PATTY weeps! She spies a bee
Buzzing in the roses.
Running dolefully to me,
Little Pat supposes
I can keep her from the sting
Of that brown bee blustering.

If I were a yellow bee
And could choose between
Posies growing fragrantly
And my heart's true queen,
I'd know where to gather bliss!
It is Patty I would kiss!

That the importation of a shipload of young women to Virginia in 1619, marked the beginning of home life in America. Each colonist "bought" his bride for 120 pounds of tobacco, the cost of her transportation.

Stitching on Gloves

The glove was a well-known article of dress in England about the Fourteenth century. Companies manufacturing gloves were in existence as early as the Fifteenth century. Gloves have had some form of embroidery stitched on the back almost since the beginning of glove manufacture. Queen Elizabeth's gloves had much rich and elaborate embroidery on the backs of the gauntlet cuffs.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

A FELLOW FULL OF FUNNY ANTICS

PROBABLY Peter Rabbit would have spent the whole morning listening to Glory the Cardinal had he not caught sight of an old friend of whom he is very fond, Kitty the Catbird. He was a little smaller than Welcome Robin, and was dressed almost wholly in gray, a rather dark, slaty gray. The top of his head and tail were black,

"Did You Pass a Pleasant Winter Down South?" Asked Peter.

Peter forgot all about Glory and hurried over to welcome Kitty, who had disappeared among the bushes along the old stone wall. Peter had no trouble in finding him by the queer cries he was uttering. They were very like the meows of Black Pussy the Cat. They were harsh and unpleasant and Peter understood perfectly why their maker is called the catbird. He did not hurry in among the bushes at once, but waited expectantly. In a few minutes the harsh cries ceased and then from the very same place came a song which seemed to be made up of parts of the songs of all the other birds in the Old Orchard. It was not long, but it was charming.

Peter listened until the song ended, and then scampered in among the bushes. At once those harsh cries broke out again. You might have thought that Kitty was scolding Peter for coming to see him. But that was simply Kitty's way. He was pretending. He is simply brimming over with fun and mischief and loves to pretend.

When Peter found him he was sitting with all his feathers fluffed out until he looked almost like a ball with a head and tail. He looked positively sleepy. When he caught sight of Peter he drew those feathers down tight, cocked his tail up after the manner of Jenny Wren, and was as slim and trim looking as any bird of Peter's acquaintance. He didn't look at all like the same fellow of the moment before. Then he dropped his tail as if he hadn't strength enough to hold it up. It hung limply straight down. He dropped his wings, and all in a second made himself look fairly disreputable. But all the time his eyes were twinkling and snapping, and Peter knew that he was making these changes just out of pure fun.

"Did you pass a pleasant winter down south?" asked Peter.

"Fairly so. Fairly so," replied Kitty. "By the way, I picked up some new songs down there. Would you like to hear them?"

"Of course," replied Peter. "But I don't think you need any new songs. I never heard such a fellow, excepting Mocker and Mockingbird, for picking up other people's songs."

Kittys' throat swelled and he began to sing. It didn't seem as if so many notes could come from one throat. When the song ended Peter had a question all ready. "Are you going to build somewhere near here?" he asked.

"I certainly am," replied Kitty. "Mrs. Catbird and I expect to build at once."

Mother's Cook Book

FAVORITE SPRING VEGETABLE

WHILE the subject is before us, let us discuss a few ways of using the well liked but odorous onion.

When cooking a few carrots add a stalk or two of celery cut fine and an onion for flavor. Cook in as little water as possible and dress with plenty of butter, The three flavors are especially good.

Scalloped Onion With Cheese.

Cook small even-sized onions, using as many as will be needed, drain and place a layer in a baking dish, cover with a rich white sauce and a spoonful or more of creamy cheese; repeat and cover with a thick layer of buttered bread crumbs. Bake until well heated through and serve hot. Nice for tea with a simple lettuce salad.

Onions With Early Apples.

Slice one or two onions, add a bit of sweet fat or butter and cook for ten minutes, adding a little water; now add thinly sliced tart apples without peeling, cook until all are tender. Season well with salt and a little sugar and serve as a vegetable with any meat. Very good with roast pork or tenderloin.

Mild Onion Salad.

Slice the southern onions very thin, add an equal measure of mild apple, a few dates cut fine and serve on lettuce with any desired dressing.

Sliced onions in french dressing served well drained as filling for sandwiches of buttered rye bread make most tasty eating. Nice for Sunday night lunch after church.

Use Boiler in Homemade Diving Bell

CUTTING the boiler of an old water heater in half, these ingenious school boys of Los Angeles have constructed an efficient diving bell at home at a total cost of $5, which they spli between them in a partnership arrangement. The window of the bell was constructed of heavy celluloid, lead weights were welded onto the boiler to bring its weight up to 80 pounds, and a bicycle pump to supply oxygen to the diver completed the outfit. The boys plan to further their study of oceanography with the diving bell this summer.

Mrs. Elsie Willoughby Weds Mr. I. L. Putnam

At a quiet wedding ceremony Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Elsie Willoughby, of Nevada City and I. L. Putnam, of Yuba City, were united in marriage in the presence of a few friends in Reno, Nevada. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Brewster Adams in the garden at his home on Riverside Drive. Mrs. Kittie Kimball, of Nevada City and J. N. Osborne, of Grass Valley, attended the bride and groom respectively.

The bride was attired in a seafoam, green silk repp costume with white accessories. The matron of honor wore a dress of green a shade deeper. The bride carried a bouquet of bride's lilies and pink sanpdragons. Those attending the wedding were Miss Eleanor Willoughby, Ralph Arthur Willoughby, Mrs. Kittie Kimball, Mrs. Ed Martine, all of Nevada City, and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Osborne, of Grass Valley.

Following the ceremony a delicious dinner was served at the Overland hotel.

The bride has lived in Nevada City for the past eight years and following the death of her husband was editor of the Nevada City Nugget, and established and published the California Mining Journal. She has been active in civic affairs. She also acted as secretary of the Nevada County Chapter of the Mining Association of California for several years. For the past two years she has been living in retirement in order to regain her health.

The groom is engaged in business in Yuba City and has been a friend of the family for many years. He is a man of sterling character and has made many friends in his visits in Nevada City. Mr. Putnam looks forward to the time he can dispose of his business in Yuba City and make his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Putnam spent a few days on a honeymoon before returning home. Mrs. Putnam is returning to Nevada City to remain until the close of school on account of her children and then plans to join her husband in Yuba City.

Mrs. Leland Smith returned home Wednesday evening from Sacramento where she had gone as a delegate to attend the convention of Parent Teacher Associations of Northern California. The meetings were held in the Memorial auditorium and were interesting and instructive.

There will be an important meeting of the local Parent Teacher Association this afternoon in the Washington grammar school. Reports will be given on the meeting in Sacramento and a meeting in Grass Valley last Saturday, which was attended by Mrs. Leland Smith and Miss Zoe Tredennick.

Plans are to be made for the organization of the Camp Fire Girls in Nevada City next week. It is also hoped definite plans can be made for the Pet Show being sponsored by the P. T. A., at this meeting.

The fifth grade received the attendance banner for most mothers present for the month of April.
